

A dispatch from the Emperor: supplies are desperately needed by the army along the furthest limes. If you have an agent on Ephesus or Lugdunum right now, receive $500 next turn for filling this next turn.

A good year for oil in Spain this year; receive a one turn bonus in trade from Hispalis and Toletum of $500 (if you have a warehouse in those markets).

A good year for luxury goods from beyond Greece; receive a one turn bonus in trade of $500 from Ephesus and Perge (if you have a warehouse in those markets).

A good grain harvest in Egypt this year; receive a one turn bonus in trade from Alexandria and Memphis of $500 (if you have a warehouse in those markets).

Your ship does not make port; pay $200 in insurance losses per city in Carthage, Alexandria, and Rhodes (if you have a warehouse in those markets).

A provincial governor is enriching himself at traders' expense. Lose the value of trade at your furthest market from Rome.

Plague in the Aegean kills thousands in the cities that surround the coast. Lose any traders on Athens, Delos, Rhodes, Constantinople, Thessalonika.

The Emperor is promoting the return to the mores of yore. If you have an eligible son or daughter, you MUST marry them off, or lose one prestige.

The Emperor, for reasons of his own, forces your son/daughter to divorce their spouse. Lose one prestige.

A good wine vintage in Gaul this year; receive a one turn bonus in trade from Narbo and Marseille of $500 (if you have a warehouse in those markets).
