

Plague in the Aegean kills thousands in the cities on the coast. Agents in Athens, Delos, Rhodes, Constantinople, and Thessalonika all die (and are removed from play).

After the death of the previous Emperor, you backed the wrong candidate for the Purple. Lose one prestige.

Joyful news. A new grandson/granddaughter (pull family card) survived infancy and can be named, and eventually used as a pawn in your family's machinations.

Social snub: you were accused in polite society of being a mere trader. Others laughed. Person with the highest amount of $ loses one prestige. If there is a tie, both players lose one prestige.

Census. Those who have 1000 money are enrolled in the Senate, and receive one prestige. Those who were in the Senate but do not have 1000 money are removed, and lose one prestige.

Local elections. If you are tied by marriage to a local aristocracy, roll die to see if your client to win election to Decurion. 4+ to win. Prestige boost of one.

Praefectus Annonae. Most prestigious individual with warehouses in Rome AND Alexandria OR Rome AND Hispalis is appointed praefect.

Trade boost of 500 for 2 turns.

Census. Those who have 1000 money are enrolled in the Senate, and receive one prestige. Those who were in the Senate but do not have 1000 money are removed, and lose one prestige.

Fulfillment of a vow – lucky in battle, you pay $500 for a small temple at the battlesite for one prestige if you have one agent at the edge of Empire (that is, a market size 5).

Your patron is running for the consulship & needs financial support. Pay $500 immediately. Go into debt if necessary OR lose an agent.

Great Fire in Rome!

All warehouses there burn down.

A new amphitheatre in your largest market requires animals. You have the opportunity to sponsor the games for $500 to receive one prestige.

Natural disaster! Flooding ruins the routes to the most profitable market in your network. No trade reaches you from there next turn.

War on the Limes! Provide grain to the troops to support the Emperor; if you have a complete network from Rome to a market size 5. Bonus $ 500

Revolt in the Provinces! Locals rise up and kill resident Roman citizens. Lose any agents on Rhodes or Damascus.

Revolt in the Provinces! Locals rise up and kill resident Roman citizens. Lose any agents on Carthago or Alexandria.

Revolt in the Provinces! Locals rise up and kill resident Roman citizens. Lose any agents on Hispallis or Massillia.

Revolt in the Provinces! Locals rise up and kill resident Roman citizens. Lose any agents on Ephesus or Lugdunum.

Census. Those who have 1000 money are enrolled in the Senate, and receive one prestige. Those who were in the Senate but do not have 1000 money are removed, and lose one prestige.

A good wine vintage in Gaul this year; receive a one turn bonus in trade from Narbo and Marseille of $500 (if you have a warehouse in those markets).

A dispatch from the Emperor: supplies are desperately needed by the army along the furthest limes. If you have an agent on Ephesus or Lugdunum right now, receive $500 next turn for filling this next turn.

A good year for oil in Spain this year; receive a one turn bonus in trade from Hispalis and Toletum of $500 (if you have a warehouse in those markets).

A good year for luxury goods from beyond Greece; receive a one turn bonus in trade of $500 from Ephesus and Perge (if you have a warehouse in those markets).

A good grain harvest in Egypt this year; receive a one turn bonus in trade from Alexandria and Memphis of $500 (if you have a warehouse in those markets).

Your ship does not make port; pay $200 in insurance losses per city in Carthage, Alexandria, and Rhodes (if you have a warehouse in those markets).

A provincial governor is enriching himself at traders' expense. Lose the value of trade at your furthest market from Rome.

Plague in the Aegean kills thousands in the cities that surround the coast. Lose any traders on Athens, Delos, Rhodes, Constantinople, Thessalonika.

The Emperor is promoting the return to the mores of yore. If you have an eligible son or daughter, you MUST marry them off, or lose one prestige.

The Emperor, for reasons of his own, forces your son/daughter to divorce their spouse. Lose one prestige.

A good wine vintage in Gaul this year; receive a one turn bonus in trade from Narbo and Marseille of $500 (if you have a warehouse in those markets).

